*Swope, Perkins named to
The Club advisory panel*

The Club at Briarcliff Manor, the $300 million fee-for-service Continuing Care Retirement Community (CCRC) for which construction is expected to begin in 2011, has announced that Bradford Perkins, co-founder and chairman of the architectural firm of Perkins Eastman, and David Swope, founder and chairman of Club Fit, have joined The Club at Briarcliff Manor's newly formed Advisory Board.

Mr. Perkins has been the architect for dozens of projects in the county, including many retirement communities and other senior living facilities. A licensed architect, member of the College of Fellows of the American Institute of Architects (AIA) and a former director of the New York Chapter of the AIA, he has served as president of the New York State Association of Consulting Planners. The Scarsdale resident is the recipient of the Lifetime Achievement Award from the New York Society of Architects, and was recognized with the Platinum Circle Award from the Hospitality Design Association. Perkins Eastman is among the top architecture and design firms in the world.

Club Fit, which Mr. Swope founded in 1980, operates multi-sport health clubs in Briarcliff Manor and Jefferson Valley. A graduate of Harvard College and Columbia University, the Ossining resident practiced law in New York City before opening Club Fit. He currently serves as chairman of the board of the Jacob Burns Film Center in Pleasantville, president of the Westchester Community Foundation and is a member of the board of directors of Teatown Lake Reservation.

The Club at Briarcliff Manor will feature 325 independent living residences, an array of amenities and services and a 60-unit Supportive Living Center where a licensed and professional staff will provide assisted living, memory support and skilled nursing care on-site 24 hours a day. Occupancy is projected for 2013.
